

CLEAN UP SQUAD OPENS WORK HERE TODAY ON CLAIMS OF SERVICE MEN

Small Crowd of Veterans Appears When Hearings Open But Attendance Is Expected to Increase for Session at Court House Friday.

Only a comparatively small crowd of former service men seeking hearing on their claims for compensation met the government clean-up squad Thursday morning when it opened a two day session in the county court house. The number of veterans increased, however, toward noon and officials in charge of the squad work said it was possible that between 50 and 100 cases would be heard in the course of the day.

The average day's work for the squad is from 200 to 250 cases, members said.

Afternoon and night trains from Tishomingo and Coalgate are expected to bring crowds of ex-soldiers and sailors to enter their cases before the squad. Friday, squad members expect to meet scores of men from Pontotoc, Johnston and Coal counties. Additional clerical help was put to work this morning and the organization for taking care of a large number of men Thursday afternoon and Friday is complete.

The Veterans' Bureau, under the supervision of which clean-up squads are now covering every state, was established by the Sweet act which passed congress recently. Col. C. R. Forbes, Washington, D. C. is director of the bureau. Oklahoma is in the fourteenth district as outlined in the Sweet bill. Capt. S. C. Kile, Dallas, is district manager and Dallas is district headquarters.

Members of the Oklahoma clean-up squad here today and tomorrow are M. H. Griffin of Washington, D. C., contact agent of the Veterans' Bureau, Dr. Walter B. Gossett, in charge of the medical division, U. S. public health service, Frank Ciekler, in charge of Federal Vocational Education matters, and Dr. E. R. Lewis, temporary contact agent of the Veterans' Bureau. These men are being assisted by Mrs. Orville Sneed, secretary of the Pontotoc County Red Cross, officials of the local post of the American Legion, and other organizations.

It is the purpose of the squad to help incapacitated war veterans understand the Sweet act and to assist them in filing their claims properly at Washington. Many men, now suffering from injuries received in or resulting from the war are now receiving too small or even no compensation. Dr. Lewis said, pointing out that this was not the will of the government but rather due to an endless amount of red tape that was believed necessary. He cited the case of one man in Ada who is receiving only half disability compensation because of a gun shot in the hip when he should be getting full disability compensation.

Dr. Lewis outlined clearly the necessary steps which ex-service men should take to make their claims "stick." These are given elsewhere in this paper today.

Veterans Will Have Reduced Rail Rates For Tulsa Reunion

A letter explaining special rates extended to Confederate veterans who wish to attend the state reunion at Tulsa, beginning September 20, was received Thursday morning by Capt. Wyatt Webb, one of the local delegates, from M. G. McDonald, McAlester, Adjutant general and chief of staff of the Oklahoma Division, U. S. V.

Following is part of the letter: "I presume you have read Federal Order No. 2 which fully explains matters pertaining to fares to the Tulsa reunion. Remember that none but veterans and their wives are to receive identification certificates. Members of allied and affiliated organizations, such as sons and daughters of veterans, and members of the Confederate Memorial association, pay fare at the current rate on the going trip. Take receipts from the agents of whom they purchase tickets, and present these receipts to the Tulsa agent, who will give them a reduction on the return trip. "Badges will be furnished you at Tulsa. I will furnish you all the certificates you need, but do not give them to any persons except veterans and their wives. General K. M. VanZandt has just announced that the National Reunion will be held in Chattanooga, Tenn., on Oct. 25, 26 and 27."

6 NEGROES MUST PAY WITH LIVES

Only Restraining Order of Supreme Court Can Save Alleged Rioters.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—Execution of the six negroes convicted of murder in connection with the Elaine race riot of two years ago, which has been set for Sept. 23, cannot be prevented or deterred through filing with the clerk of the supreme court an application for certiorari, officials of the court said today.

Officials when advised that a writ had been forwarded by the council for the negroes from Little Rock, Ark., pointed out that the court would not convene again until October 3, and consequently before action could be taken on the application had been carried out. The only federal judicial action which would stay the execution, court officials said, would be an order staying the execution, by a justice of the supreme court.

UNEMPLOYED ARE STAGING SCENES

English Cities Torn Up By Demonstration From Idling Crowds.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—Demonstrations by unemployed were held in many places throughout England yesterday and in several cities serious disorder was narrowly averted. An ugly spirit was in evidence at Bristol where the crowds attacked the building occupied by the board of guardians and clashed with the police. Exciting scenes were witnessed at Liverpool.

One of the most noticeable incidents occurred in Wales where four thousand persons marched across the mountains from Aberllyrry to Tredgar, a distance of 12 miles.

ANCIENT WILL GIVES FORTUNE IN HOLLAND

ZION, Ill., Sept. 8.—Under the terms of a will made 145 years ago and just discovered, John Taylor, railroad auditor, will share half of an estate of $25,000,000 in Holland, his attorneys announced today.

Peter Taylor, his great-grandfather, was born in Scotland, but went to Holland in 1709 and amassed a fortune. He died, leaving a will which was not to be opened for 100 years, according to Taylor's attorneys. The will made 145 years ago was recently discovered by Amsterdam lawyers. John Taylor and a brother, Peter Taylor, of Scotland are said to be the only heirs to the estate, which attorneys assert is still intact.

ROOT DENIES HIS CALL HAD IMPORT

Conference With Harding Did Not Deal With Disarmament.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—President Harding had nearly an hour's visit today with Elihu Root who has been mentioned as a possible member of the American delegation at the disarmament conference. "We talked of everything from cabbage to peas," said Mr. Root, denying however that he talked of the disarmament conference or league of nations matters, politics, or the German treaty. He said he called at the White House to pay his respects to the president.

Mr. Root characterized as idle talk the reports from Geneva that he was persuaded to change his decision not to accept election to the international court of justice being organized through the league of nations.

"There is no law to meet the situation," he said.

DEPUTY SHOT BY MOTORISTS WILL RECOVER, BELIEF

LAWTON, Sept. 8.—Deputy Sheriff Dan Wimple, who was shot last night near Cache, 18 miles west of here, while attempting to stop a party of motorists, probably will recover, according to authorities at the hospital where he has been taken. The automobile which he attempted to stop is believed to have been the one which earlier in the evening had run down an aged couple near Grandfield, killing the woman instantly and seriously injuring the man.

Following the shooting the occupants of the car, said to be two men, made their escape. No trace has been found of them.

50,000 MEN GET JOBS AS RESULT OF WAGE EDICT

(By the Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—Immediate employment of about 50,000 men here starting $100,000,000 construction work seems assured today as a result of a wage decision handed down yesterday by Judge Landis, arbiter in the building controversy. While the Builders Trade Council does not meet until tomorrow to take formal action on the decision which embraced the wage cut from ten to thirty-six percent for various classes of workers, union leaders were predicting acceptance of the decision even though workers might regard it as unsatisfactory.

RAIN OVER STATE BOOST FOR CROPS

Many Towns Get Light to Heavy Showers Wednesday Night Is Report.

(By the Associated Press)
OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 8.—Rain ranging from heavy in the northern part of the state to light and scattered showers in the southern part fell generally over Oklahoma last night, according to reports received by the weather bureau here today. Scarcely no precipitation was recorded in the southwest portion of the state where it is needed most and weather officials said the rain would not be considered as having broken the drought generally.

The heaviest rainfall, 2.70 inches, was reported at Woodward.

Weather officials pointed out that there was no pressing need of rain in the northwestern part of the state, where rain fell heaviest, but said that the moisture would help in preparing the soil for fall cultivation.

PONCA CITY, Sept. 8.—The heaviest rainfall in two months fell early last night and this morning it was 1.35 inches. A total rainfall of 2.75 inches this month has been recorded.

1.44 Inch at Enid.

ENID, Sept. 8.—One and forty-four hundredths inches of rain fell in Enid and vicinity last night according to an announcement of the local weather bureau this morning. Farmers declared this will be beneficial to their crops as they were beginning to need rain badly.

MIAMI GETS SHOWER.
MIAMI, Sept. 8.—Drought which has extended a long period was broken last night. A thunder storm accounted for .64 inch rainfall and decidedly lowered the temperature.

BLACKWELL, Sept. 8.—A hard soaking rain fell in this city and vicinity last night and it is believed to be general over northern Oklahoma, amounting to one and a half inches. It will prove a great benefit to farmers in the fall seeding of wheat as the ground was too dry to plow.

ALLEGED FIGHT IN FAMILY PUT COURT IN STIR

Another family quarrel occupied the greater part of the police court this morning. One arrest had been made and another will be made before tomorrow, police said. Andrew and Ida Oliphant of West 17th st., are charged with fighting. Oliphant's mother being the other half of the alleged fracas, according to police. Mrs. Oliphant was suffering from a nervous breakdown this morning, they said, and was not able to report at police headquarters. Oliphant was lodged in jail and will be given trial this afternoon or tomorrow. He is 52 years old.

The trouble is said to have started when the mother started to cook some food this morning. According to her story she had nothing to eat for more than a day. She stated to the mayor that both her daughter and her husband attacked her when she refused to leave the kitchen and she was badly bruised. The woman said she was poorly clad and with no other person to depend on for a living.

How to Make Your Claim Hold Water.

Ninety percent of claim statements of war veterans who are suffering from injuries or poor health growing out of their service, sent back rejected from Washington, as marked "insufficient medical evidence, according to Dr. E. R. Lewis, temporary contact agent of the Veterans' Bureau, here today with the clean-up squad. To eliminate this excuse, Dr. Lewis outlined three things necessary for the veteran to do under the new Sweet act to get his compensation claim allowed without delay. These are set forth in Article 7, ninth division of the bill. They are:

1. Veteran should secure an affidavit from a doctor who saw him after he left the service, stating his exact physical condition and the nature of his physical disqualification.
2. He must have two affidavits from men, preferably his "buddies" in the service, stating their knowledge of his injuries or exposure to gas.
3. He must have an affidavit from his employers or other local men who know him to have been well and able to work before the war and who certify that his earning capacity has been cut as the result of war service.

THE DEVIL QUOTES SCRIPTURE.

Commenting on the present rise in cotton prices, the Wall Street Journal lets out a wail suggesting profiteering by the cotton farmer. After surveying conditions and pointing out how short the supply is the Wall Street Journal continues:

"But here is one thing for cotton men, producers and handlers to remember: 'Be ye not drunken with power.' War conditions are passing away. The people protested against exorbitant prices, and the index has steadily decreased since then. Because of the public attitude the consumption was greatly decreased; a reduction of 1,600,000 bales in domestic consumption last season was the people's answer to 40-cent cotton. Along with commodities, wages too are being reduced. Values must be real and become relative. The people will pay what cotton is actually worth, but will not stand for an inflated price."

Talk about the devil quoting scripture! When did the Wall Street Journal become so tender about the prices the public must pay for anything? And what did it tell us when our cotton went down to 10 cents? What has it always said when we did not get a fair price for our cotton? Did it not say something about the law of "supply and demand" and insist that there is no escaping that law? When will people like the editors of the Wall Street Journal understand that real prosperity begins at the bottom with the producer? The falling off in the demand for cotton last year, whether it was an answer to 40-cent cotton or not, was certainly a calamity to business generally, for it had a major share in depressing even the markets of Wall Street and in multiplying unemployment. The rise in the price of cotton during the past two weeks is the most encouraging sign that has appeared upon the business horizon. And yet so blind is the prejudiced view of the Wall Street Journal wherever the producers are concerned that it must raise the cry, "Be ye not drunken with power." There is no danger of such a thing. On the contrary the relief will come to the distressed cotton farmer, where it does not come, will be passed up all along the line, even to the Wall Street Journal.—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

A SUGGESTION.

Far be it from us to criticize adversely the work our public schools are doing, but we want to call attention to what we believe is an oversight. Pupils should become better acquainted with living men and women and what they are doing.

It is said that in a test recently conducted among a selected body of pupils, they made only 44 percent on current events. We learn also that a high school pupil thought Lloyd George is king of England, that Senator Lodge is secretary of war, that Samuel Gompers is a poet, and that Charles E. Hughes is the private secretary to ex-President Wilson.

While it is necessary for the educated boy or girl to know the writings of Livy, Caesar, and Cicero, as well as that of the great writers of English, they also should know something of the life that is around them. Not so many years ago a high school graduate asked us if it would be necessary to take a boat to get to Cuba, another wanted to go from Ada to Holdenville and Sulphur on the same train, and another one still was of the opinion Canada and Mexico lay in the same general direction.

There is a world around us, about which we should know more. Our teachers should give a bit of time to the things that are and the people who are living and making history now. They are as important as those who lived and made history in the past.

With the Normal in full swing and the city schools to open next week, Ada is beginning to feel like a school town again. We hope all of the young will wax wise and soon be ready to take their places in the business and professional life.

Just a few more days before the county fair will be in progress. What are you doing to make it a success?

Will Hays Makes Good.
(Fort Worth Star-Telegram)
Postmaster General Will H. Hays has been the surprise of the administration to those who did not know the combination of brains and endless energy who is the head of the United States mail service. Those who knew him knew that he would make good, they knew that he was not merely a politician, but rather a marvelous executive and organizer in a political position.

When Hays was appointed to the position vacated by Albert Sidney Burleson the politicians wagged their heads and waited for the dishing out of political pie. Was not the head of the Republican organization transferred to the chief political pie counter in the government for the purpose of more efficient distribution of the goodies of office to a hungry political bread line? Certainly, it was easy. Come on boys, let's eat.

The newspaper writers who didn't know prepared for a reign of gumshoe methods in the big stone post-office department building. They looked for closed doors and secret conferences and all the petty stuff that goes with old-fashioned spoils system politics. They too, got a big surprise.

To those who knew that Will Hays was the organizer and executive in politics rather than the politician in the executive job, the denouncement was no shock. But the country at large has been surprised and pleased. And no one has been more gratified than the men of the postal service, many of whom, within the last day of two, have expressed their delight with the new order of things.

Hays started out by opening the doors. He made himself as accessible to the public as a man with the load of work on his shoulders can make himself. He made himself accessible to the men of the postal service. A veteran of that department told the writer within twenty-four hours, that now a rural route carrier can write to the postmaster general without bringing down the wrath of higher-ups on his head.

Though a member of the party in power and a member of the president's cabinet and so, in one sense, a political adviser, Postmaster General Hays has made it clear that he believes he is a servant of all the people and that his department intimately touching the lives of more American citizens than any other, is a non-political department. Upon his appointment he at once began to divert himself of his duties in connection with his party and to many who tried to get him to take up partisan matters, he said pointedly, "I am a government official, not merely a party executive, and I have got to look at things from the angle of a public servant."

THE LARGEST BRICK BUILDING

THE Pension Office Building, Washington, D. C. is often referred to as the largest brick building in the world. That statement is easy to believe when one learns that 15,500,000 bricks were used in its construction. It is four stories high, exclusive of the basement, 400 feet long, 200 feet wide and contains 175 rooms. The court contains eight columns, each eight feet in diameter at the base and 75 feet high. Each column contains more than 55,000 bricks and 1,449 square feet of plaster, all beautifully colored in representation of many historical scenes.

First occupied during the year 1885, this building was constructed as a memorial to the brave soldiers and sailors who had so well served their country during the Civil War, as well as to house the employees and records of the Pension Bureau.

The corridor accommodates 18,000 people and it is here that the presidential inaugural balls have been held.

Precious indeed are the records which are filed away in this great structure. In passing, it is interesting to note that the report of the commissioner in charge for a recent year, shows 78,147 pensioners on Uncle Sam's pay roll and the total disbursement was more than $165,000,000.

"VAMPS" WHO MADE HISTORY

By JAMES C. YOUNG.

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)
THE VAMPIRE WHO TRAINED A TYRANT.

ONE of the most dangerous women in the ancient world was Poppaea Sabina, wife of Nero. Under her tutelage he emerged from youth as a profligate and tyrant. History shows that before their meeting no other Roman emperor ever had a better chance of making good on his imperial job, and none ever failed so miserably.

When Nero came into power at the age of seventeen Rome was just becoming acquainted with the luxury of Greece and the Orient. But he had been raised like a Spartan by his mother Agrippina, who made him emperor almost single handed. The rigorous discipline of his mother presumably should have made Nero a brave, simple-living man, like the Romans of old. Instead, he quickly turned to luxurious ways of life. Then he met and loved Acte, an Asiatic woman. Agrippina forbade him to carry on the affair. Nero balked. He was emperor and not a mere boy any more.

The love affair with Acte estranged Nero and his wife, Octavia, whom he had married as a matter of statecraft. Then he fell under the sway of Poppaea Sabina and quickly abandoned Acte. Poppaea also was married, but as mistress to Nero she chided him for submission to his mother. Nero lost his head and set about doing whatever Poppaea bled. She was older than he, but beautiful and seductive—a vampire in very truth. And she meant to make herself empress. Agrippina stood in the way, and Poppaea lost no chance to rub salt upon the wounds in Nero's pride. Her promptings led him to his first and perhaps his greatest crime, the murder of his own mother. When this deed had been done, Octavia still remained. But not for long. She was banished, then murdered. Poppaea became empress.

Nero, a prey to excesses of every kind, began to verge upon madness. He had many of the most prominent men executed, including even Seneca, the philosopher and tutor of his childhood. Then Rome was burned and the whole of the ancient world whispered that Nero had fired it. The emperor began reconstruction on a grand scale and actually accomplished much in that way. But his race was run. His last supporters fell away, and one night the praetorian guard deserted its post, leaving the palace unguarded. Nero crept away in the darkness, alone. The senate met and forfeited his life, when he committed suicide, at the age of thirty-one.

It was not Poppaea who laid him at rest, but the gentle Acte, who alone claimed his body.

FIRE WRECKS BIG DAMAGE FOR ROFF

Four Buildings Caught in Midnight Blaze for Loss of $10,000.

ROFF, Sept. 8.—(Special)—Fire of undetermined origin raged for some time on the main street of Roff early Wednesday morning causing a total damage variously estimated from $10,000 to $12,000. This was one of the most serious conflagrations here in recent months.

Buildings damaged were the Pastime theatre, owned by Ed Tingle, a barber shop, meat market, and shoe shop. The fire broke out about midnight and was discovered about 12:30 Wednesday morning. Valiant work on the part of fire fighters kept the flames from spreading and wiping out the business district. The buildings are reported to have been covered by insurance.

Advances in Cotton Is Breath Southern Farmer Was Wanting

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—After a meeting of the director of the Southern Railway today President Fairfax Harrison issued a statement in regard to the recent advance in cotton:

"As to the situation in the south, there is ever indication that the corner has been turned. The advance in cotton was the breath of wind for which the south has been waiting. It has been through and past the uncertain stage and the good price of cotton effects all industries and increases the buying power, which means an increase in business. Good purchases by the south will mean better earning for all. Imports will, of course, be great but much is gained when sentiment changes."

SINN FEIN INVITED TO FURTHER MEETING

(By the Associated Press)

INVERNESS, Scotland, Sept. 8.—Officials conceded today that the British government's reply to the latest note from Eamonn de Valera, Irish leader which was dispatched to Dublin yesterday eve, invited representatives of the Sinn Fein to further conferences.

DATE FOR CONFERENCE IS ASKED BY IRELAND

(By the Associated Press)

INVERNESS, Sept. 8.—The cabinet asked Mr. De Valera for a definite reply as to when he was prepared to enter a conference to ascertain how the association of Ireland and the British Empire can best be reconciled with the Irish national aspirations. It suggests that the conference be held in Inverness on September 20.

The British note written by Premier Lloyd George said:

"Government by the consent of the people is the basis of the British constitution, but we cannot accept as a basis of practical conference and interest that which would commit us to any demand you might present, even that of a republic."

Mr. Lloyd George stated he could not believe a refusal to enter a conference would cause the repudiation of the allegiance to the crown and that if Mr. de Valera's real objection is a fear of getting less than liberty for Ireland, that matter can be discussed in the conference, if held.

IN SOCIETY

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Snead and Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Cullins returned from Dallas and Rockwall, Texas, Wednesday. They visited relatives and Mr. Snead had some work done on his artificial limb. He insists that he has not been in the hospital and that he never felt better or richer in his life.

COTTON BREAKS HEAVY AS MARKET OPENS

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Cotton broke 150 points more at the opening of the market today, due to overnight selling orders and continued weakness in the Liverpool market. October dropped to 18 cents by rebuying advanced prices 60 points from the opening level. The trades and New Orleans markets bought freely on the early break.

Wants Her Sex To Take Vote on Disarmament

By furnishing a national forum in which all American women, irrespective of creed, class, condition or political complexion, can meet and exchange views, the Woman's National Foundation, in the opinion of its first vice-president, Mrs. James McDonald, is going to help inaugurate a new era in the woman movement.

Mrs. McDonald, who lived long abroad, when her husband was opening up new oil territory in England, India, China and Japan, has an international viewpoint on most affairs.

Just now she believes that the crucial question before every country is disarmament. For that reason she has proposed the first referendum among Foundation members, blanks for which are now being prepared.

This referendum, provision for which is made in the general Foundation program, will have the twofold effect of focusing feminine attention on disarmament and of recording the opinions Foundation members express.

In order that membership in the Foundation may be within the reach of every forward looking woman in America, the basic fee has been made $1.00 a year. Those interested in its program, hopes and aspirations, should communicate with either Mrs. C. C. Calhoun, president, or Mrs. James McDonald, first vice-president, Woman's National Foundation, Connecticut Avenue, N.W., Washington, D. C.

WORKERS MARCH IN N. Y. PARADE

Endeavorers Come Down Fifth Avenue by the Thousands.

(By the Associated Press)
NEW YORK, July 9.—Thousands of Christian Endeavorers from all parts of the world swept down Fifth Avenue today singing marching hymns in a great Christian citizenship parade.

The marchers numbered more than 16,000 young men and women many wearing brilliant colors, flying banners and flags and singing all the way to the accompaniment of a dozen bands presenting one of the most unique spectacles ever witnessed in this city.

More than a score of floats were included in the procession, eleven of which depicted scenes or episodes of Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress."

Homer Rodeheaver, formerly Billy Sunday's choir leader, pranced up and down the line with his famous liphorn helping the marchers sing.

The marching column was headed by Dr. Francis E. Clark, president of the world Christian Endeavor Society, Wm. Jennings Bryan and other officers.

These were followed in order of winning the national banner for the states with the largest quota attending the convention. First was Colorado, followed by Wyoming, Arizona, Utah, Tennessee, Texas, Oklahoma, and many others.

The parade ended with a citizenship demonstration in Central park where Bryan delivered a memorial address.

COULD NOT KEEP HOUSE

Without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Says Mrs. Pitts of Newburgh

Newburgh, N. Y.—"My trouble was a weak back and I could not walk two blocks without being tired out. I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in a newspaper and decided to give it a trial. Now I can do my own work and walk with ease. I always keep the Vegetable Compound in the house. It certainly is my best friend and I could not keep house without it. I have recommended it to many and always shall. You may use this letter if you wish."—Mrs. EDWARD PITTS, 2 High St., Newburgh, N. Y.

It has been said that "backache is an invention of the Evil One to try women's souls," but even so, it is more often a symptom of a female trouble which sooner or later declares itself. Day after day it drags a woman down and night after night prevents restful sleep. Such women should follow Mrs. Pitts' advice and try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and regain health. Letters about your health will be given careful attention and held in strict confidence if you write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Their experience of over 40 years is at your service.

INVESTIGATE KILLING OF PONTOTOC CITIZEN

An investigation into the killing of Arthur Johnson of Allen at Coalton early last week has been started at Okmulgee, according to word which reached here today.

Johnson was said to have been shot by officers when he resisted arrest at Coalton.

Charging that officers Joe Clay, Mike Colley and John Powell were intoxicated when they attempted to arrest Johnson and killed him in the encounter, a committee of Coalton citizens is reported to have called upon James Hepburn, county attorney of Okmulgee county, this week and demanded a full probe of the matter.

As the first step toward the investigation, the county attorney filed charges of murder against the three men and their arrests were to be made this week, according to newspaper reports. The committee is said to have labeled as false the report that Johnson was wanted in Illinois for the killing of a president of the mine worker's union and declared that his killing was one of the most cold blooded murders in the history of the county. Hepburn is credited with saying, "That the officers went to where Johnson was and opened fire on him without any warning was the charge made by the committee."

One of the officers said immediately after Johnson was killed that he fled from the house firing at them when they went to make his arrest.

If it is battery trouble I can fix it. Kit Carson, phone No. 124. 7-9-16f.

NORTHLAND NEW MECCA OF MOVIE MAKERS

Producers and movie stars have awakened to the fact that an almost untapped but extremely rich field for making movie pictures exists in Canada. Script with Canadian locales is now in keen demand.

The magnificent grandeur of the Canadian Rockies has been made familiar to travelogue audiences and a few scenarios have been filmed among the Canadian snow peaks, but the film industry has barely touched upon Canada's possibilities.

Theda Bara's acquisition of a summer home in Nova Scotia, where she spent her recent honeymoon, awakens hope that she may give us the great, long-expected

"Evangeline" screen play now that she owns a home in the lovely valley from which the Acadians were banished long ago.

Quebec's picturesque habitants with their quaint houses, 300 year old costumes and primitive customs, will yield material for many a historical film. The Plains of Abraham wait patiently for the producer who shall re-enact the momentous struggle between the forces of Wolfe and Montcalm.

Romance in the Canadian north-west invariably brings to mind the Royal Canadian Northwest Police. These scarlet riders of the hills and plains have figured prominently in literature and the spoken drama and are proving a valuable asset in making Canadian film plays.

A step presaging the evolution of the Lake-of-the-Woods district into a second Hollywood has been taken. Operations for the making of a massive photoplay will begin there shortly. The plot will be a national in character involving the operations of a huge syndicate which affect both countries. The play will be staged over a region reaching from International Falls to Lac du Bonnet, and English River. Airships will be used in taking some of the scenes and hitherto unknown sections as well as the better known parts of this resort country, will be shown on the screen. The grandeur of this country when dressed in winter's snowy mantle assures a picture of unspeakable beauty.

SARA'S OIL STOCK

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD.

(© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"There!" exclaimed John Chester, turning the key in the old lock. "That's over!" He swung down the trim, box-bordered path, out through the sagging gate, and along the elm-shaded dirt road that led to the railroad station.

So intent was he on catching the afternoon train to the city that he failed to notice the slim girl coring up just behind him, and she, at his disregard, merely sighed without quickening her pace to overtake him. She sighed because it was, in all probability, the last she would ever see of John Chester.

Nor did she need the "For Sale" sign which John had just tacked up to know what for days had been town gossip—that the last of the Chesters had rejected the manner of living of his fathers and was going to the city to seek his fortune. But, because of it, she sighed.

Not that there had ever been a love affair between them.

As the days passed, the sign of the shuttered old Chester house, fast showing signs of unoccupancy, grew to trouble Sara. The farm, unsold and untenanted, was running down. This fact, coupled with reports which drifted back from the city that John Chester's fortune was proving elusive, and that he was shifting from one job to another, tormented her with a sense of the waste of good material and of her own impotency in the matter.

Came a sunny day in late March when Sara cast a bombshell at the feet of the aunt with whom she lived.

"Aunt Julie," she gave out casually over her cup of tea, "I'm going to spend next week-end in the city."

"Sara!" her aunt's voice was startled. "Of all things, Sara!"

"Yes, that's just what I'm going to do," returned Sara unperturbed. "And furthermore—do you remember those oil stock certificates that Cousin Jenny left me? Well, I'm going to take them along. Who knows, perhaps, they're not as worthless as I've thought them. Just suppose—" and her blue eyes grew dreamy, "perhaps they will bring me my fortune!"

Now it happened that several days after this conversation there walked into the outer office of Whitby & Whitby, brokers, a shabby looking youth with tired lines about his eyes and mouth. A sound of voices from the inner office assured him that his employer was occupied, and sitting down at a dingy desk he rested his head on his hand while his thoughts traveled backward over the discouraging months. Where was he headed? This all but questionable firm in whose employ he was at present held out no future for him. Little by little, taught by bitter experiences, he had learned how unfitted he was to compete with men trained for their jobs.

Into his meditations crept memories of home, of green fields tilled by his father and his grandfather and his grandfather's father, of substantial barns, of the cheery homely dwelling. And with those visions arose persistently the picture of a certain slim, blue-eyed person, the playmate of his boyhood, whom, in his feverish pursuit of fortune, he had all but forgotten.

John Chester sat suddenly upright. Who in thunder was in the inner office talking with old Whitby?

"—yes, I hoped," went on a plaintive voice that awoke in him a sudden, tremendous response, "to realize something on this stock. You see, I have a chance to make a splendid investment. I can buy the old Chester place back home. It is a farm famed for generations by men who knew how to husband the resources of the soil. But if these certificates are worthless, as you say—"

And then followed the suave tones of his employer. "Just so much waste paper, my dear young lady. Too bad."

A moment later the door opened and John, risen to his feet, met the level, blue-eyed gaze of Sara Cary.

"—why, why, Sara!" was all he managed. Then: "Wait—let me walk a way with you."

For several blocks through the streaming late afternoon traffic of which neither was aware, they walked silently. Sara was the first to speak. "John," she said gently, "the—the bluffs are up in the swamp place. And Dutchmen's Breeches. Remember how we used to go after them?"

"Do I?" exclaimed John fervently. Then he turned impulsively. "Sara!" he cried, "I'm—I'm sick of it all—the hurry, the noise, the crowds. I'm—oh, Sara, I'm going back home!"

But not until their very wedding day did John learn the real secret of Sara's trip to the city. "I can't bear to think," he had chanced to say as they stood for a moment side by side on the clematis-draped porch of the old homestead after a simple ceremony at Sara's home, "of you, my darling, traveling about the city trying to get rid of worthless old stock. You need a husband to keep you from such things."

But Sara threw back her head with a merry laugh. "Why, John Chester!" she cried gayly, "of course I knew they were no good. Only—well, those certificates furnished me with a proper excuse for going to the place I had heard you were employed. You see, if once I saw you, I thought, I hoped—I—"

"You did," said her husband and kissed her tenderly.

These Leaders Listed as Founders Of Plan to Give Nation's Women $3,500,000 Civic Center at Capital

Erection of a $3,500,000 civic home in Washington, in which every American woman of good standing in her community will be invited to have a share, is the plan of the Woman's National Foundation. That the plan is sound is guaranteed by the distinguished women already enrolled as Founder-Donors. Of this long list, every name of which represents a contribution of at least $1,000 to this enterprise, probably no members have finer records of public service than Mrs. John Hays Hammond and Mrs. James Carroll Frazer.

Mrs. Hammond, whose husband represented President Taft at the coronation of King George V of England, was chairman of the Militia of Mercy and Governor of New York State for the Woman's Naval Service during the war. In peace time, she is identified with all civic and welfare movements. Mrs. Hammond is a vice-president of the Foundation, one aim of which is the teaching of subjects conducive to better citizenship among the country's women.

Mrs. James Carroll Frazer, who is a member of the Executive Committee of the Woman's National Foundation, was chairman of the Navy League Comforts Committee during the war and now heads that committee which aims to memorialize the fighters of Belleau Wood. Those interested in becoming members of the Foundation, the basic entrance fee of which is but $1.00 for non-residents, should communicate with Mrs. C. C. Calhoun, President, Woman's National Foundation, Connecticut Avenue, N. W., Washington, D. C.

COULD EAT NOTHING WITHOUT DISTRESS

"I could not eat anything without great distress, and weighed only 139 pounds," said Mr. Thomas Anderson, residing at 419 Linden St., Winston Salem, N. C. "I also had a chronic cold," he continued, "for which I had tried numerous medicines without benefit, until I was advised to try Mendenhall's Number 40. I improved from the start and am now on the fourth bottle; my cold has left me and I can eat anything I want and my weight has increased to 156, my usual weight. If anyone needs a medicine that will build him up and put his blood in good condition, he should certainly try 'Number 40.'"

"Number 40" is recommended for blood troubles from any cause; chronic constipation, rheumatism, indigestion, eczema, skin troubles, etc. Acts on the liver, removing waste matter from the system, thus cleansing the blood of all impurities and doing away with the need of cathartic pills and tablets. Sold by Gwin & Mays Drug Co.

OPTIMISM GROWS IN MIDCONTINENT FIELD

TULSA, Sept. 8.—The situation in the Mid-Continent field at the present time is looking very bright, and even if the improvement is only temporary, the recent cool September morn breezes, make every one feel a lot better. Certain developments of the last few days have led many to believe more strongly that the bottom in the oil business has been reached, and soon things will take an upward turn. Gasoline is holding strong in the Oklahoma district at from 11 1/4c to 11 1/2c, although somewhat weak in Texas; and fuel oil is said to be moving very good. Many refiners state their products have been contracted for several months in advance, and even though indications point to a slackening demand at the beginning of winter, the market is expected to hold firm. Leading members of the refining business announce that a concerted effort will be made to cut the runs into their plants as the demand slackens, to such an extent that fair prices will be upheld.

There were very few completions of any note in the Oklahoma fields last week, and no doubt the figures for the state will show a decided slump in the next few weeks as well as the state of Kansas. By December a material decrease should be shown in the production of the Mid-Continent field, and this can be averted only by a miracle. The producers, with the exception of a few large companies, are almost entirely shut down, and intend to stay shut down until the price of crude goes back to a fair figure.

However, these optimistic signs should only be taken for what they are worth, as no doubt any general improvement must be gradual. Optimism should be practiced, but should be tempered with cool calculation and prudent discrimination. The producer is at the base of the whole situation, and if he stays shut down and the production of oil falls off there is no doubt that things will continue getting better.

NEW ORDINANCE MAY KEEP DARK TOWN AT HOME

Prospects for a new city ordinance prohibiting negroes from loitering in the white section of the city are good, according to Mayor Kitchens, who declares such an ordinance is necessary to insure protection for people employing negroes at the home. Complaints are being received from people employing negroes in the home that in many cases one or more other negroes are being supported by her and that she steals food for them, he said.

Several months ago an ordinance was passed prohibiting whites from loitering in dark town. If the new ordinance is passed, negroes who have been making a practice of living at someone else's expense through the medium of a negro servant will be forced to stay in dark town, it was pointed out. As it is, officers are not able to do anything with them and a new law is needed, city officials stated.

A misguided flivver, a hamburger stand, a collision and a crowd—this was the gist of the little occurrence on East Main street last night, about 9 o'clock, when said car and stand were considerably injured, and the crowd given a little excitement. Two men were in the car going west on Main street and ap-

PATRICK HENRY

By GRACE R. OLIN.

(© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The third of July dawned reluctantly and sultry. Outside, the sounds of the day were already heard.

Inside, the Raff flat was commencing to show signs of the beginning of the daily routine.

Mrs. Raff, smart in her morning dress of striped blue and white, was putting the finishing touches to little Anna's and the baby's toilet.

"Jimmie," she called to James, Jr., "didn't you call grandpa, yet?"

"Sure," answered the eight-year-old heir; "but grandpa says he ain't going to eat any breakfast this morning; he says he's got a 'gagement'."

"A what?" with a puzzled frown.

"A 'gagement,'" shrieked Jimmie, above the clatter of the dishes, as he vigorously set the breakfast table.

"He means an engagement," explained Raff, Sr., with a grin. "Where do you suppose the old boy's going?"

"I can't be guessing now," replied his wife. "He ain't going to see mother until tomorrow. Jim," she added, lowering her voice, "this is the second time this week he's gone without his breakfast; the other time he had an engagement, too."

"Hint anything?"

"Not him, he's as mum as a clam. If Ellen's house was not so far away I would suspect him of going to see mother. He's getting pretty restless lately, I've noticed."

Mrs. Raff sighed in a pained fashion. "We can't have everything we want in this world," she continued. "Now, wouldn't I love to go to Ellen's for the Fourth, dressed up swell, with you and the kids. But we can't afford it, costs too much for fares."

"I'd like pretty frocks, and a car, and cute clothes for the young ones, and some new things for the house. But if I can't, and I ain't going to mope over it. I've tried to make a nice home for father, but if he don't appreciate it, and tries to keep things from me, I can't do a thing. But I do say as how I think it's kinder ungrateful like."

Mrs. Raff deposited Baby Johnnie in his high chair, and stepping across the hall, she knocked on her father's door.

"Father," she called, "it's terrible hot out this morning, you'd better have an egg and some coffee to brace you up. Come on, we're just sitting down."

"I'll be out in a minute, Nellie," the voice inside had answered.

It was quite some five minutes later that the Raff family suffered a severe shock. They had heard the warning of steps, but they were altogether unprepared for the apparition that stood in the doorway. She had seen her husband's eyes fairly bulge over his coffee cup, and had heard Junior's excited exclamation, before she turned to look.

"Patrick Henry Grandman," she cried, quite ignoring the familiar "father" in her wonder.

"Wherever in the world did you get the fine duds and where, I ask, are you going?"

For answer, Mr. Patrick Henry Grandman advanced jauntily into the room.

His eyes were twinkling, but when he spoke his tone was calmness itself.

"Nellie," he said, "did you think your old dad was content to wear old togs and work in the factory for twenty dollars a week, when I worked full time?"

"Did you think I wanted to be separated from your blessed mother? But I was tied, hand and foot. First, I was sick, and then your mother, then they cut us down to half a week's work and I had my trade and could do nothing else."

"Well, Nellie, to make a long story short, I've been working on an invention. I've thought of it and dreamed of it and at last my dream has come true. Nellie, I signed the Declaration of Independence last night when I sold it to the government." He placed a roll of bills at her plate.

"Celebrate tomorrow," he told her. "But, father," broke in Mrs. Raff, "you aren't going to leave me. I won't."

Patrick Henry Grandman raised his hand.

"Didn't I tell you, girl, I had signed the Declaration of Independence? Your mother and I will never be parted again." He patted her hand as he spoke, and for the first time his daughter could find no answer.

And meanwhile, down in Ellen's house some sixty odd miles away, a little old lady was smoothing down her soft black silk, and white laces, with hands that shook.

"No, thank you, Ellen," she was saying. "I don't want to do it myself. Patrick always liked it the way I did it."

It was rather an awestruck little throng that watched them depart the next day. The flag waved proudly from their automobile, and around them and above them burst frecklers and the crack of Jimmie Junior's pistol.

"Dearest," he whispered, as the big red car rolled off, "we've got good children, but I'm glad we are going to be together, just you and I."

"Patrick Henry," exclaimed his wife, anxiously, "you didn't tell 'em that, did you, dear?"

"Of course not, darling." The corners of his mouth deepened suddenly. "I'm just telling you, dear. Give me liberty or give me death," quoted Patrick Henry.

Headquarters For Nation's Women At Capital Will Be Majestic Architectural Monument

MRS. C. C. CALHOUN

Of many designs submitted by leading American architects to the Woman's National Foundation, of which Mrs. C. C. Calhoun is president, the above drawings by Francis Burrall Hoffman, Jr., and Murray Hoffman, well-known New York architects, have been finally accepted by the architectural committee for the Foundation's new civic feminine home. This will be the main building of a magnificent group shortly to be erected in Washington, D. C., on a nine and a half acre site. As the Foundation aims to include all progressive American women, whether their interests be civic, literary, artistic or domestic, provision will be made for these various activities in the new home.

In the main building will be the executive offices not only of the Foundation itself but of all clubs desiring headquarters in the national capital. Here, too, will be a theatre or opera house. The unique feature, however, of this pile will be the Hall of Remembrance, which is also to be the auditorium or convention hall of the Foundation. The architectural design here will allow for forty-eight columns representing the forty-eight states, on which will be inscribed names of famous women who from pioneer times to the present day have made state and incidentally national history.

A second building on the Foundation ground will include residential quarters for members, in whose roll every woman of good standing in her community can be entered at a basic fee of $1.00 a year. There will be also a Founders' Club, to the privileges of which all women who have helped by their initial donation of $1,000 to bring this wonderful civic home within the reach of American women, will be entitled. Membership in this club will be open until January 1, 1923.

Those desiring further information about the objects of the Foundation should communicate with the Woman's National Foundation, Connecticut Avenue, Washington, D. C.

CONFIDENCE REIGNS IN IRISH CIRCLES TODAY

(By the Associated Press)

DUBLIN, Sept. 8.—Signs of confidence and good spirits were again apparent among the Sinn Fein at the Mansion house this morning. They had received a statement of Premier Lloyd George's reply to Eamon de Valera which will be made public here tonight at the same time it is given out by the British government. So far as could be judged Irish leaders were not disturbed or surprised by Mr. Lloyd George's communication.

WORLD'S RECORD IS SET IN CONVENTION

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Chemists of Great Britain, Canada and the United States began an international conference here today which was heralded as the greatest meeting in the history of their science and industry. More than 3,000 of them were expected to attend the series of addresses, synopsiums and exhibits which will continue through September 10, embracing all phases of chemical work, with particular emphasis on post-war problems.

The following seven days will be devoted to the seventh national exposition of the chemical industries.

Prominent among those scheduled to address the gathering were Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, Sir William J. Pope, president of the Society of Chemical Industry of Great Britain, a number of chemistry professors from universities of the United States, England and Canada and heads of research departments in many industries of the three countries.

The British and Canadian delegations came here from Montreal, where the Society of Chemical Industry of Great Britain recently held a convention. In New York they were joined by the American division of their organization and hundreds of members of the American Chemical Society.

Unemployment among chemists was scheduled as one of the foremost topics for discussion. In this connection chemists expressed hopes of absorbing many of the unemployed graduates of chemical schools in research work in preparation for freshening of industrial activity.

Tariff legislation affecting the chemical industry in America also was booked for consideration. A broad field of chemical endeavor is represented in the various synopsiums. These will include subjects as old as the filtration of water and as new as the vitamins which, like appendicitis, may always have existed but were late in being recognized.

HUNG JURY REPORTED ON LARCENY CHARGE

A jury, called by special request of the defendant Wednesday afternoon in the case of the state against Harry Adkins, of near Jack Fork, charged with the larceny of a pistol, was reported to Justice of the Peace H. J. Brown, sitting in the case, to be hung, and by permission of Assistant County Attorney H. F. Mathis the case was dismissed.

Adkins asked for a jury in his trial and jurymen split their vote, three for conviction and three for acquittal.
